Bado Ofilada

February 3, 2015

Welcome to the Pinoy Nostalgia Discussion Group. Friendly debates should prevail in this group as we try to inform what is happening on the world of radio, television, movies, and the latest news around the Philippines and around the world.

Bawas-bawasan na lang ang mga nakaka-obvious na post, like the post of David Michael Lopez last night na ang English ng 'susunod na' ay 'coming up next', which is obvious naman. Kung ayaw ninyong matulad kina Jan Dominique Arceo at Archie Paredes, HUWAG MAGPOST NG MGA MASYADONG OBVIOUS NA TANONG AT MASYADONG OBVIOUS NA POST.

Bawas-bawasan na rin ang mga irrelevant topics, pati na rin ang change of topic.

In terms of programming schedule, dapat yung listings from Monday to Sunday ang ipopost, huwag yung exclusive lang for one day like Sunday.

Bawal po dito ang nude pics, pati porn pics.

Higit sa lahat, bawal po mag change ng topic.

John Uriel Cabarrubias Obviously it's fine, but they can if the government will change the constitution by removing all foreign ownership limit to allow U.S. media companies to own TV channels and TV stations can be affiliate with those U.S. TV Network in the first place (like 1980s or 1990s). Or just build a TV station by a local/foreign firm to carry ABC programming instead of IBC 13, However foreign media can't operate their news division from a local TV station in the Philippines unless they have a "Local marketing agreement" with a local broadcast company to re-air their local news programs to that TV station that owned by a foreigner (ABC America) but operate by a local broadcast company under a agreement that I mentioned before. (Just my ideas/suggestions/opinions/)

Like · Reply · December 28, 2015 at 4:58pm

Joshua Jimenez actually, the examples you cited are not actually affiliations with US networks, they are syndication deals. Usually they are mixed with locally produced shows. Local marketing agreements would make a good alternative, as foreign ownership of media is prohibited by even other countries as that would infringe in sovereignty. Besides why lift ownership controls to benefit only one country? Gusto mo yata ibalik ang parity rights eh. and about foreign media can't operate here, FYI Al Jazeera has established a bureau in Manila.

Like · Reply · January 4 at 3:56pm

John Uriel Cabarrubias I mean if a foreign media will buy a local TV station in the Philippines, they can, but establish a news division for a local TV station is forbidden unless they have a news sharing/local marketing agreement with a local broadcast media company to keep from infringing our sovereignty and pride.

Like · Reply · January 4 at 4:27pm

John Uriel Cabarrubias Joint venture can also do that as well.

Like · Reply · January 4 at 4:28pm

John Uriel Cabarrubias Foreign media can establish a news bureau/division only for their international news channels like CNN, Al Jazeera, BBC News, etc., not for those typical local radio/TV stations.

Like · Reply · January 4 at 4:31pm

Joshua Jimenez That can't be possible. A foreign firm buying a local station. Other countries won't allow that.

It's final: Automated polls to push through

MANILA, Philippines - There is no more legal barrier to the automation of the general elections in May.

Voting 13-2, justices of the Supreme Court (SC) have upheld an earlier ruling on the legality of the P7.2-billion automation contract between the Commission on Elections (Comelec) and the Smartmatic Corp.–Total Information Management (TIM) Inc. consortium.

In its decision, the SC dismissed the appeal of the Concerned Citizens Movement (CCM) led by UP professor and lawyer Harry Roque Jr. for lack of new substantial argument.

“On the basis of the arguments, past and present, presented by the petitioners, the Court does not find any grave abuse of discretion on the part of Comelec in awarding the automation contract to the joint venture of private respondents,” the 15-page resolution penned by Associate Justice Presbitero Velasco Jr. read.

“With this ruling, any question as to legality of the poll automation contract has been laid to rest,” SC administrator and spokesman Jose Midas Marquez told reporters.

Malacañang was elated by the decision.

“We are happy that the High Court has decided to lift this legal cloud hanging over the automation process, and we hope that no more obstacles remain in the country’s pursuit of a successful automated election,” deputy presidential spokesman Gary Olivar said.

The SC said CCM’s arguments in its motions for reconsideration were a mere rehash of issues already resolved in its ruling on Sept. 10 last year.

The SC has also dismissed as “highly speculative and without evidentiary value” the concern of petitioners over the possibility that the consortium might not be able to set up the required telecommunications facilities stipulated in the contract.

“Surely, a possible breach of a contractual stipulation is not a legal reason to prematurely rescind, much less annul, the contract,” the SC said.

It also described as “untenable” CCM’s use of “unverified news reports” to claim that Smartmatic-TIM has sub-contracted the production of the precinct count optical scan (PCOS) machines to Shanghai-based Quisdi.

In its ruling, the SC also junked the interventions of election lawyer Pete Quadra and the Senate through Senate President Juan Ponce Enrile.

Quadra, who died four months ago, had questioned the “auditability” of the results of the automated elections.

But the SC explained that the system to be used is a paper-based system and has a provision for system auditability.

The SC also dismissed CCM’s argument that the Comelec and the consortium violated a provision of the Poll Automation Law on pilot testing of the automation system in the country.

The court took into consideration the position of the Senate that “pilot testing was not a condition precedent to full automation.”

Comelec earlier argued that the term “pilot testing” as used in Section 6 of Republic Act 9369 merely states that for the regular national and local elections, the machines “shall be used in at least two highly urbanized cities and two provinces...”

Absentee voting

Meanwhile, the Comelec has agreed to automate the overseas absentee voting (OAV) in Hong Kong and Singapore following assurances from Smartmatic-TIM that there is still enough time to ensure its smooth implementation, according to Comelec Commissioner Armando Velasco, chair of the Committee on OAV.

The Comelec earlier cancelled plans to automate the elections in Hong Kong, Singapore and Saudi Arabia due to the host governments' worry of having a huge number of people converging in one place.

"There's no more objection but they are requesting us for a dialogue. They want to see what this automation is all about. They are very eager to see the mechanics of this automation," he said.

But the Comelec will have to work double time since OAV begins on April 10 or one month before the actual election on May 10.

Velasco admitted that the poll body has yet to conduct an education drive on automated election among the voters in Hong Kong and Singapore.

The Comelec and Smartmatic-TIM will send 19 PCOS machines to Hong Kong and seven to Singapore.

Velasco added that due to high interest in the automation system, they expect voter turnout of 50 percent.

In the 2007 midterm polls, voter turnout for OAV was a low 16 percent.

Comelec records show there are 95,000 registered voters in Hong Kong and 31,000 in Singapore.

In this country, there's nothing like an election to stir the public interest. The elections for the Senate seats, coming up in May, have mobilized political parties into oiling their respective machineries, and candidates, whether organizational or individual, into spacing up their platforms. Considering the general passion for the process, the coming event promises an exciting battle.

Manila Standard invites you to take part in a pre-electoral exercise by naming your choices for the Senate. A list of candidates are provided at left to aid you in your selection. List down your candidates on the spaces provided at right in this coupon, clip and mail or deliver to:

Manila Standard

In this country, there's nothing like an election to stir the public interest. The elections for the Senate seats, coming up in May, have mobilized political parties into oiling their respective machineries, and candidates, whether organizational or individual, into sprucing up their platforms. Considering the general passion for the process, the coming event promises an exciting battle.

Manila Standard invites you to take part in a pre-electoral exercise by naming your choices for the Senbate. A list of candidates are provided at left to aid you in your selection. List down your candidates on the spaces provided at right in this coupon, clip and mail or deliver to:

Flashback Friday from Mr. Mon Mon Mitra. #holyweek

Ramon Mon-Mon Mitra

March 25, 2016 · Makati

Christians celebrate Good Friday to commemorate the crucifixion of Jesus Christ. It is observed the Friday before Easter.

Good Friday is a public holiday in many parts of the world and devotees consider it as a day to fast as their sacrifice to the Lord, who died for the sins of other people on Earth. According to the Holy Gospel, Jesus' disciple Judas Iscariot betrayed him with a kiss for thirty pieces of silver at the Garden of Gethsemane. "While he was still speaking a crowd came up, and the man who was called Judas, one of the Twelve, was leading them. He approached Jesus to kiss him, but Jesus asked him, "Judas, are you betraying the Son of Man with a kiss?" according to Luke 22:47-48.

Since the two days before Easter are considered as a period of mourning, the celebration of the Holy Eucharist or Holy Mass will not be performed until Easter Vigil, instead the celebration of the Passion of the Lord (way of cross) will take place in the afternoon on Good Friday.

For God so loved the world, that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life. For God did not send his Son into the world to condemn the world, but in order that the world might be saved through him." - John 3:16-17

"Oh God, release us from the time of trial and oppression and help us to witness the joy and life rising from death. Amen"

Bataan Death March survivor Rafael Estrada weeps while recounting his experience during the Bataan Death March. Estrada turned to the Philippine General (in background) and said "I am sorry sir, I know soldiers are not supposed to cry".

The Bataan Death March may have happened 74 years ago, but for those who were there, the experience is something that would haunt us forever. Today is Araw ng Kagitingan. Let us not throw away what they fought for. Let us continue to consciously fight for our rights. (Text source: Dakila-Philippines)

Six years ago, I chanced on an article about political jingles and slogans. I forgot its source, but let me share it with this group (and later on, at the Pinoy Nostalgia page)

Campaign ads, videos and taglines. Who's been naughty or nice this election season? As May 10 draws near, let us all take a moment to reflect on the season which is second only to Christmastime in length and cultural importance to Filipinos: election season. (Or is it even second?) Even months before the official campaign period started, we have been barraged with faces, names and promises by all these candidates. So much election propaganda has polluted our airwaves, so much paper and plastic on our streets, so much rhetoric yet so few actual choices in our so-called democracy. Monday is just a step away, and as we all finalize our lists and prepare our codigos, now is probably a good time to assess all these election-related videos and whatnot. After all, these are instances of culture, and whether or not these candidates' propaganda are “truthful”—truth being prone to contesting views—they do say much about ourselves, our society and the system we live in. It is necessary to note that as with any award-giving body, these views are the product of subjectivities like taste, class and ideological positions. You are free to not share my opinions, but you are also free to enjoy them. I hope you do the latter. Relax lang, peeps. Without further ado, I begin this three-part series with a roundup of this season's best and worst videos and taglines.

Best Campaign TVC (Individual)

Satur Ocampo – “Sure Ka Kay Satur!” series. We're tired of seeing all these politicians shoving their faces at us, hogging the credit for specific achievements. The brilliance of Satur's ads is that they go against this narcissistic grain. We see workers, students, farmers and professionals proudly owning their respective achievements. These accomplishments are never singlehandedly attributed to Satur. Rather, the agency of these very sectors is upheld and celebrated. While Ocampo lets each sector speak of its own triumphs, these sectors in turn recognize Ocampo's invaluable role in each victory.

These ads showcase Satur's undeniably impressive pro-people track record, as well as his democratic outlook which is strongly anchored on grassroots involvement.

Worst Campaign TVC (Individual)

Risa Hontiveros – “Maganda ang Laban.” Is this video irritating or what?! This woman seems to think that the elections is a beauty pageant. Her commercial doesn't show an ounce of track record or a shred of commitment. Ganda lang ang puhunan. Heck, she can't even commit to dancing. If she's gonna bank on her beauty, she might as well go all the way! Igiling mo, beybeh! Not this half-baked rocking to and fro (if you call that dancing), while flashing the Laban sign and cutesy smiles. Please. This video makes me shudder.

Honorable Mention

Noynoy Aquino – “Laban Na'To!” (The Rap Video). If one could face raps for rapping, siguro kalaboso na si Noynoy ngayon. Ugh.

Best Campaign Video (Group)

NP – “Suportahan ang Kababaihan.” This is a surprisingly good commercial. Not only does the ad flaunt the fact that Nacionalista Party has the most female-dominated slate, it also supplies a quite sensitive and well-delivered (kudos sa AD at speech coach!) script. The scoring is understated, and the cinematography interacts with the production design well, the pale blue-tinged whites complementing the various orange shades of the candidates' outfits. Most of all, the ad makes Miriam seem gentle, vulnerable and sensitive. That is an achievement in itself.

Best Music Video

Eddie Villanueva – “Eddie Tayo.” Eddie Villanueva's music video is very youthful, and features music by one of our generation's most talented rappers, Gloc 9. There is the classic road trip imagery, which brings to mind summer days and carefree times. The video features lively camerawork and editing, combining fun choreography with colorful graphics and well-made animation. The highlight, of course, is the music. Gloc 9 posits, “Sino pa? Eh di ako! Kailan pa? Eh di ngayon!” The wordplay between “eh di” and “Eddie” is sheer genius; the citizens' agency is maintained alongside support for Villanueva, both sharing equal prominence. The message is that beyond voting, Filipino citizens' involvement in governance is essential “para maitaguyod ang bayan ni Juan.”

Worst Music Video

Noynoy Aquino – “Hindi Ka Nag-iisa.” As I said in an earlier post, this video just shows that bourgeois solidarity and interests are Noynoy's main selling point.

Best Tagline (Senator)

Imelda Papin – “Tinig ng Bawat Pilipino sa Senado.” And what a tinig it is! Jukebox queen!

Honorable Mention

Franklin Drilon – “Big Justice.” A great spin on Drilon’s obesity. But it’s obesity nonetheless.

Worst Tagline (Partylist)

PBA Partylist – “Sports lang, you know!” No, I don’t know!

Honorable Mention

ABROAD Partylist – “Work abroad, pay later.” Easier to export Filipino labor this way!

Worst Tagline (Party)

Liberal Party – “Kung walang corrupt, walang mahirap,” for being a misnomer.

Most Misplaced Tagline

Bayani Fernando – “Lalakeng kausap.” Should have been Jamby Madrigal’s.

Honorable Mention

Risa Hontiveros – “Magandang Laban.” Should have been Adel Tamano’s, kasi mas maganda si Adel. Hihihi

GREAT MUSICIANS. I had the pleasure of savoring some fine music of great Filipino musicians last Thursday and Saturday night. I was with friends sitting on a table at Danny's Grill along Timog Avenue, when some elderly guys sitting on the table next to us stood up and obliged to play some music on the stage. The guys, who were all in their 70s, played the music of their time. I mean, o our time. It was jamming time anyway. They played the Electromaniacs' "I Miss You So" followed by "Lovers' Guitar." I was so mesmerized watching the four guys playing the two classic music. Later, they returned to their seats and I told one of the guys that the lead guitarist played like Ernie Delgado, the lead guitarist of the old Electromaniacs, one of the early local combos that sprang out in the 1960s. The guy told me: "Pare, si Ernie Delgado nga iyan." "Hah! Sori hindi ko nakilala," I told him with a touch of embarrassment. Later, I talked to Ernie, who gamely accepted my offer of apology for not knowing him. Ernie is one of the finest musicians the country has produced over the last 60 years. He is the composer of the two great songs they played. He is 75 yo and has retired from active music. But he would oblige when asked to play some music. Last night, I was also with friends when we went to My Brother's Moustache and watched Noel Cabangon, who played his music, mostly his compositions. We were fortunate to listen to "Kanlungan" (Pana-panahon ...) and "Tatsulok," his two better known songs. I had some small talks with Noel during his break at the end of his show. He will be at My Bros Moustache on July 2. I will definitely find time to watch him again...

Timothy John Liwanag Paragas Here's the difference between Duterte and James Ty.

Right now, Duterte is too preoccupied with the internal affairs but hopefully soon, he'll leave for a few days out of the country as part of the state or working visit (can break his isolationism) but for Mr. Sunday, his mind is narrowly preoccupied with the Big 3 on a Sunday at home. Kahit wala na siya sa Pinas, his Sunday mindset still remains (staying in isolationism permanently).

Today in Philippine History, March 24, 2001, Roselle Ambubuyog became the first visually-impaired Filipina who emerged summa cum laude

On March 24, 2001, Roselle Ambubuyog became the first visually-impaired Filipina to emerge as summa cum laude graduate of the Ateneo de Manila University (ADMU).

Born on January 12, 1980, Ambubuyog, totally blind since age six, finished her bachelor of science degree, major in mathematics with flying colors. She was also chosen as class valedictorian chosen among all summa cum laude graduates.

She earlier graduated valedictorian from her elementary school and, four years later, was again valedictorian of her high school batch.

As a scholar of ADMU, the school bought Ambubuyog a Braille Translation Software program that converts encoded or scanned text to computer as well as a Braille printer that produces hard copy Braille to make the exam questionnaires, lecture notes, and other classroom materials.

Also bought for her was the talking calculator so she can hear the numbers while she computes.

With her determination, she achieved clinched the Valedictorian of The Year Award for the whole graduating batch of 2001 which was chosen among all Summa Cum Laude.

Ambubuyog also won all the other awards possible for a graduating Ateneo student: the president's award for service and excellence as most outstanding individual; the St. Ignatius Award for Outstanding Scholar, and the departmental award for mathematics.

Outside the university she has received the Jose Rizal Model Student award from the Knights of Rizal Supreme Council and one of the science awards from Bank of the Philippine Islands.

IT'S THE NEW BABYFLO BABY COLOGNE and BABYFLO BABY OIL

*Just the right
to make your baby all sweetly soft and nice

Baby will be the sweetest smelling baby on the block with the new Babyflo Baby Cologne. It's mild, gentle and has a slight touch of lemon to give baby that truly refreshing, cool feeling. After every bath, Babyflo Baby Oil is the ideal way to close baby. Made of pure imported mineral oil and lavender, it has just a hint of floral essence to keep baby smelling nice. Babyflo Baby Oil is hypoallergenic and is also perfect for other general uses of the whole family.

Maggi Sinigang sa Miso TV commercial since early 2000's featuring Sam Concepcion.
Who remembers this jingle?

sam conception- Maggi sinigang commercial sooo cute... a tvc of Sam Concepcion for Maggi, i think it was made and aired before he joined little big star.

Does anybody remember these lines from a certain public service announcement (PSA)?...

"Si Melanie may problema. Labinganim pa lang magkakababy na. Melanie, call phone number here. Tahan na, it will be alright".

It was usually aired on "sine sa dos" (abs-cbn) during early 90's.

Noli Yamsuan passes away <http://www.veritas846.ph/noli-yamsuan-passes-away/>

Manuel I. Yamsuan, Jr., more fondly known in media and art circles as “Noli”, photojournalist and photographer of saints, popes and bishops, passed away at 3:45 p.m. today (December 10) at the Cardinal Santos Medical Center. He was 71.

Noli had been in the hospital for more than a month, after having suffered an acute stroke and complications of diabetes.

In a career that spanned more than 40 years, Noli documented and photographed – for various international and local publications – historical and political milestones in the country. But he is most remembered and acclaimed for his coverage of the life and ministry of the late Jaime L. Cardinal Sin, Archbishop of Manila. As Cardinal Sin’s official and personal photographer, Noli also chronicled major events of the Philippine Catholic Church, including the three papal visits to the Philippines by two Popes (Pope John Paul II in 1981 and 1995 and Pope Francis in 2015).

He continued to “shoot bishops and priests”, as he often said in jest, as photo editor and chief photographer of the Archdiocese of Manila. Over the past few years, he shared his expertise in the unique craft of liturgical photography through a series of seminars for professional and student photography enthusiasts.

Noli was a licensed chemical engineer, having graduated with a Bachelor’s Degree from the University of Santo Tomas, where he also completed his secondary education. He joined the defunct Philippine Daily Express in 1972, giving in to a passion and launching a long and multi-awarded career in photojournalism and photography.

The Sight and Sound of Broadcasting
EXCELLENCE

RJ BOSSRADIO NETWORK

It began with the music that shaped a generation, aired over "The Teenage Station Serving The Teenage Nation" in 1963; a bastion of freedom over the airwaves as "Radio Bandido" during the darkest days of the EDSA Revolution in 1986; and reaching new heights in broadcast and technological expansion via the RJ Bossradio Network...

Then, it strengthened its broadcasting capabilities by being one of the first to enter the UHF-age, ushering a fresh outlook in wholesome family entertainment and pioneering in direct TV marketing in 1993...
